				the whole of his life. He belonged to one of Campden's oldest families and was a gardener, and is best remembered by an older generation. He was a member of the old Campden Drum and Fife Band about 60 years ago, when the late Henry and James Keeley were active members of it, He had a great natural gift for music and had only to hear a tune to be able to play it. His favourite instrument was an English concertina, and in bygone days he was much sought after locally to play at wedding parties and other festivities.	1941, 7

Both defendants pleaded guilty. - P.C. Parker stated that he was in Church-street when he heard some loud talking, and on looking round he saw both defendants struggling on the ground, and he locked them up. - Superintendent Hawkes stated that the men had had some beer, but they were not drunk; they were well behaved while in custody. - Haslor said they travelled together a good many years, and that was the first time they had words; they were the best of friends then. - Defendants were discharged with a caution.	Jackson's Oxford Journal , 12 June 1909, 7

1920	29 May	Chipping Campden, GLO	played in the town band and also for morris dancing	Scuttlebrook Wake was held on Saturday last, when an innovation was introduced by specially catering for the children and by commencing earlier in the day than on former occasions. All the children of the town met at their respective schools, where they were each supplied with a flag. They then marched to the market square, and all formed a procession, which was headed by a huge union jack and the jazz band, under the conductorship of the local comedian, Mr. Tom Hooker. They then proceeded to St. Catherine's-square, where the children were formed into a ring round the jazz band. After Morris dances had been given by some of the members of the band, the procession was re-formed to the square, where there was another performance by the Morris dancers. All then proceeded to leaseborne [sic], where there were more Morris dances and selections played by the jazz band...	The Cheltenham Chronicle and Gloucestershire Graphic , 5 June 1920, 4

1887	14 February	Bidford on Avon, WAR		At the Working Men's Clubroom, on Monday evening [14th], the usual monthly entertainment took place. The room was completely filled. The programme gone through was of a very interesting character, and the endeavours of the respective performers were received with hearty applause. The Rev. A. Evans presided, and the programme was as follows, the pieces marked with an asterisk receiving an encore ; - Instrumental trio, Mr. J. Robbins and sons...[and again, later] *Instrumental trio, Mr. J. Robbins and sons.	The Alcester Chronicle &amp; Warwickshire &amp; Worcestershire Advertiser , 19 February 1887, 8
1887	12 & 13 May	Bidford on Avon, WAR		On Thursday afternoon a bazaar was opened at the New School-rooms, for the extinction of the debt, about £90, which has been incurred by the restoration of the chancel of the Parish Church and the new organ...During the sale a programme of music was gone through. Miss Boulcott and Miss Davison played solos on the violin ; Miss King contributed a song ; Mr. Fosbroke sang "Tell her I love her so" ; the Messers Robbins gave some instrumental music ; and the Bidford Church choir capitally rendered two glees and a chorus. The efforts of the performers were warmly appreciated. The attendance was very large. In the evening an exhibition of Mrs. Jarley's waxworks was given before a good audience in the Old School-room. The scenes were interspersed with performances by the Bidford Morris Dancers...At the back of the stage was a drawing of the old Falcon Inn, Bidford, executed by Mr. H. Harv ey [sic] which, as is well known, was the scene of the famous drinking bout in which "the sweet Bard of Avon" participated. The programme was the same for yesterday (Friday).	The Alcester Chronicle &amp; Warwickshire &amp; Worcestershire Advertiser , 14 May 1887, 8

1909	early June	Shipston-on-Stour, WOR	charged with a breach of the peace	Alfred Haslor and Walter Sutherland, both of Northampton, travelling musicians, were brought up in custody, charged with committing a breach of the peace at Shipston the previous day. Both defendants pleaded guilty. - P.C. Parker stated that he was in Church-street when he heard some loud talking, and on looking round he saw both defendants struggling on the ground, and he locked them up. - Superintendent Hawkes stated that the men had had some beer, but they were not drunk; they were well behaved while in custody. - Haslor said they travelled together a good many years, and that was the first time they had words; they were the best of friends then. - Defendants were discharged with a caution.	Jackson's Oxford Journal , 12 June 1909, 7
